Best Burgers in Tokyo

One of my favorite foods is hamburgers. Today I am going to introduce the best hamburger restaurant ever.

I think most of you guys have heard of Village Vanguard before, but did you know that there is a restaurant named Village Vanguard Diner? It is a chain restaurant, so there are many of them in Tokyo; Nishi-Ogikubo, Kichijoji, Ogikubo, Harajuku, Shimokitazawa, and so on. They focus on cooking high quality burgers to satisfy their customers. The meat is thick and juicy, which makes you feel like you're actually eating an 'American burger.' What's more, they have the cutest restaurant decor ever. It's worth going there and taking some pictures to get over 100 likes on your Instagram account!

Movie Recommendations

For some people, studying English is nothing but torture. One way to study English is watching English TV shows or movies. If you are a member of Amazon Prime, you can install an app called "Prime Video" and watch over 30,000 movies. For those who are struggling to understand different accents, watching various movies from different countries will help you understand English better. I recommend watching Stand By Me, Home Alone, and Beauty and the Beast to start off. If you are good at English, GATTACA, the Twilight series, the Hunger Games series, and We Are Your Friends would be fun to watch. I hope you guys can learn a lot from watching these movies!

Valentine's Day around the World

February 14th is known as St. Valentine's Day. So, I would like to explain how this day differs around the world.

Japan: It is common for girls to give chocolates to boys to show their love. But also, girls give chocolates with no romantic association to friends, colleagues, and even to their bosses (this is called tomo-choco or giri-choco).

America: In many cases, men give presents to women. Popular presents are flowers and cards, but some give expensive jewelry to show their appreciation.

England: Many people declare their love by writing message cards. However, these cards are usually anonymous.

France: Usually men give a bright red rose to women, and couples enjoy this day by going on dates.

Taiwan: Men give roses to women, and there is special meaning behind the number of roses given. If it's only one, it means 'Only love.' If it's three, it means 'I love you.' If it's 11, it means 'Favourite.' If it's 99, it means 'I'll love you forever.' And if there are 108, it means 'Marry me!'
